

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In some embodiments, reformat logic comprises a plurality of registers and translation logic that accesses the registers. The translation logic receives a memory access targeting an application data structure that has a different format than accesses permitted to be provided to a 5 device, which may be a display. The translation logic reformats the request to a format compatible with the device based on values stored in the registers.